

GSD Building, 1997

The 8 floor building has an area of 1600 m². Although no changes were made on the facade of the existing building, in addition to the existing entrance on the ground floor, a second entrance was created on the first basement where the reception and the conference rooms are located. The circular shape of the floor tiles is also reflected on the furniture, walls and the lighting. The "trees of light" in the cafeteria create a natural atmosphere in the interiors as well as a separate dining space for the guests. Brick walls and the terra cotta floor tiles also contribute to the longing for nature. Lighting fixtures were custom designed and calculations were done specially to avoid the reflections of the lighting on the computer screens.
